

THE END OF UHRIG'S CAVE

Manager Believes It Will Soon be Torn Down.

HOTEL WILL TAKE ITS PLACE MILLION-DOLLAR COMPANY HAS OPTION ON THE SITE.

Famous Amusement Resort, Half a Century Old, Where Famous Voices Have Been Heard, Seems Doomed to Destruction.

When the curtain is rung down at Uhrig's Cave Saturday night it will mark the end, not only of the Berri-Moulouan run, but also will, unless present plans miscarry, bring to an end the career of the Cave, St. Louis' most famous and historic resort, as a place of entertainment.

A syndicate composed of St. Louis and Eastern capitalists, has secured an option on the Cave, and a company is now in process of formation to erect a thousand-room hotel on the site. The option runs until September 15, and Manager McNary said to the Post-Dispatch Wednesday morning that he confidently believed that Saturday night's performance will be the last ever given at the Cave.

"I very much regret the events which have induced me to cut short the Cave's scheduled season," said Manager McNary, "as this will be the first time in the history of the resort that the full season, as planned, has not been completed. This is our eighth week, and we had planned to run for 12."

As the management of the Cave and Miss Berri and Mr. Moulouan are concerned, everything is satisfactory.

The minor principals and the chorus are the sufferers by the sudden termination of the season.

Principals Say They Are Pleased.

Mr. Moulouan said: "Speaking for Miss Berri and myself, I want to say that we are glad the run has been shortened. The heat was breaking us down. Why, in 'The Mikado,' for instance, I am on the stage continuously, in one scene, for 30 minutes. In this sort of weather such a strain as that is frightful. We had a 12 weeks' contract and would have gone on through with it, but Mr. McNary has been good enough to relieve us. There was no trouble. I have worked 30 weeks without a break, and at the conclusion of this week, I shall be glad to lose no time in getting out into the country, where comfort is the main thing, and one doesn't have to be in his glad rags all the time."

All this talk about the neighbors having held indignation meetings to protest against "midnight revels" and "early morning orgies" is rot," added Mr. Moulouan, puffing up with indignation. "Pure rot."

Wednesday morning Miss Berri and Mr. Moulouan had not decided upon their plans for the immediate future. Mr. Moulouan, speaking for himself and Miss Berri, said that no negotiations were under way with anybody. They do not care to go to work right away, yet "might be induced to."

Miss Berri at Delmar Garden.

Mr. Moulouan and Miss Berri went to Delmar Garden Tuesday afternoon and spent the day there until it was time to come in for the evening performance. Mr. E. P. Temple reigns at Delmar, he of Castle Square fame. He had got wind of the excitement at the Cave, however, and when he saw the tall prima donna and the short first comedian approaching, he hurried himself in a newspaper from which he persistently refused to come forth. He did not meet the singers.

Uhrig's Cave probably is the most famous home of light opera in the United States. The first production of "The Mikado" in the United States was given at the Cave, and it is a peculiar circumstance that this popular production will be the last to be played there.

"Patience" also had its premiere in this country at the Cave. The men of the company not knowing the names of the principals, were evening clothes and three of the principals, wearing matters by wearing Gaiety.

The Cave as a resort dates back to 1862. It was not until 1874 that it became popular. From that year until the McNarys assumed control, in 1881, it was owned by Christopher N. B. Band. Band concerts were the only attractions.

Cave Never Lost Its Dignity.

Thomas McNary began putting on light opera in 1881 and for many years the Cave was the central place of entertainment here during the summer season.

In later years other gardens have come into existence, and, owing to more favored locations, have lured better financially, but with a large class the Cave has retained its popularity. It is a place where the rich or fallen from the high plane upon which it was originally launched, and to the end continues to be a high-class place of entertainment.

At one time or another the most famous singers and comedians in the country have been upon its boards.

Ada Rehan, the original Daly company, in 1883 made a tour of the country. In May of that year she was billed to play at the Tivoli Garden, St. Louis. The "Tivoli" was the play. The weather becoming extremely warm, however, the two weakest singers of the company, Charles O. Bassett and Charles O. Bassett, were taken to the Cave. The Cave had boasted no roof or pavilion at the side without the back, onto it is related, rainstorms several times interrupted the performance, whereas the entire audience picked up umbrellas and made its way into the Cave hall, where the performance was concluded.

Miss Rehan was compelled to dress in a tent and under an umbrella was escorted through the audience to the stage, whereupon the performance went on.

Famous Singers at Uhrig's Cave.

It will startle St. Louisans, but the history will not be denied—Blanche Chapman, now singing at Delmar Garden, was prima donna of the Cave from 1881 to 1885. George Johnson, in recent years prominent in Joe Jackson's company, was Koko in "The Mikado," and Ben Harnage in "Billie Taylor," the early eighties.

Maria Beck, Carlotta Macondo, Ada Rehan, and Mrs. Bass Henderson, and also several were among the prima donnas of the Cave.

Patience Lard and Clara Lane were the prima donnas of the Boston Lyric company which sang at the Cave in 1887. That company was the first managed by George Johnson, and was the first managed by George Johnson, and was the first managed by George Johnson.

John Barrett, Laura Millard, Dorothy Venable, George Venable, Nellie Brewster, Mary Baker, Della Fox also have sung at the Cave.

Three Physicians and One Heat Victim Tell the Cause of Prostration and How It Feels.

This is the season of sunstroke and heat prostration, as evidenced by the fact that 88 St. Louisans are now in danger from the effects of the intense heat and that thirty-eight persons died of heat in this city in the 24 hours ending at noon Wednesday.

This is the season when caution is necessary. Dr. Charles H. Hughes, Dr. H. L. Nietert, superintendent of the City Hospital, and Dr. Arthur E. Mink have written for the Post-Dispatch entertaining stories concerning the causes and treatment of heat prostration cases, and Fred E. Garland, who has twice suffered the effects of it, has told how such an attack feels.

By DR. CHARLES H. HUGHES.

SUNSTROKE is not a sudden stroke of the sun's rays, as a lightning stroke is of the clouds' electricity. It is a heat prostration, usually occurring after several days of continuous high temperature.

The prostration affects chiefly one of the nerve centers, they largely governing the various bodily functions. The sweat centers become exhausted and the equable temperature of the blood is no longer maintained, and the victim begins to burn inside.

The regular evaporation of sweat from the surface is what keeps the blood normally cool. The circulation of the blood is changed, too, and the excessive circulation reduces its fluidity. The kidneys suffer and uric acid, the waste of the body, is excreted in certain parts of the body, is often caused by extreme heat taking the water of the blood from the kidneys, which are organs vicariously from the sweat-glands of the skin, to the surface of the body to be thrown off in excessive perspiration.

A humid hot atmosphere, in which the sweat is not carried from the surface easily and the blood underneath is not kept at normal temperature, which is physiologically cool blood, is more fatal than dry, hot air.

Nature has placed many defensive mechanisms in the human organs, not the least important of which are the sweat-secreting organs. When these fail through the weakening of the nerve controlling centers, as from excessive heat, life is placed in jeopardy.

The mechanism of sunstroke is briefly this: The blood is diseased by the breaking down of nature's wall of defense, the sweat apparatus, and by the inadequate surface of the body to be thrown off in excessive perspiration.

How Sunstroke Feels;

By FRED E. GARLAND, 26 Years Old, Night Watchman at the Missouri Pacific Hospital, California and Eads Avenues.

IN the summer of 1899 while at work on the top of a building I was overcome by the heat. For 24 hours following I was unconscious. My case, according to the attending physician, was unusually severe. After a stay of 10 days at the hospital my condition was considered sufficiently safe to permit of my discharge. I was out of the hospital scarcely four days when I was overcome again. It was not unusually hot at the time, but my work as a tinner required me to be in the sun several hours a day.

The second attack was chiefly the result of a weakened system resulting from the first sunstroke and kept me confined to bed for nearly ten weeks. During that time I suffered a loss of memory and was so nervous that at times I could not hold a paper in my hand. My head ached continually and I could scarcely sleep at all.

Now and then my mind was perfectly clear and the dizziness would disappear. My sight was affected and when I tried to read the letters seemed blurred. I had practically no appetite and from a strong, healthy man I was reduced to 120 pounds.

My recovery was gradual, but, I believe, complete. With the restoration of my mental faculties my general physical condition began to improve. But it was a slow cure. For days I was so weak on my feet that I could not walk. I felt that I had really suffered ten months instead of ten weeks.

During the time I was in the hospital my temperature varied between 96 and 107 degrees. The temperature of the hospital apartment was about 85, but in the early morning when the thermometer was at 70 the heat felt just as severe as if it was 100 degrees. I did not perspire at all and the failure of the pores of the skin to open probably aggravated my condition.

I felt perfectly well when I finally left the hospital and have not suffered much from the heat since. However, I realize that it would be dangerous for me to venture into the sun, though for me heat in the shade is just as effective in overheating a person.

I think I have fully regained my health and the air tubes becoming affected and dry, like the skin, and the victim accordingly succumbs with overheated and inadequate fluid blood, as shown in delirium, unconsciousness, prostration and death.

A person who has once been prostrated by sunstroke is liable to heat trouble afterwards. A sort of circumscribed meningitis and headache in hot weather often result and treatment of a brain protective character is not infrequently necessary. Above all things, he must be careful to avoid the sun.

and I know that I weigh almost as much as I ever did.

SYMPTOMS AND PRECAUTIONS.

By DR. ARTHUR E. MINK.

TWO principal derangements of the body are produced by exposure to high temperatures—heat exhaustion and insolation or sunstroke. The first is a condition brought about by exposure to high temperatures in close, poorly ventilated places, which are very hot. Firemen in the boiler rooms of ocean steamships or in the hot rooms of factories; in short, anyone who is subjected to high temperatures may be afflicted with heat exhaustion without direct exposure to the solar rays.

It may come on at night. Such a patient is restless and frequently delirious. The skin is cool, the pulse small and rapid, and the temperature is often as low as 95 or 96.

Heat exhaustion is due to paralysis of a very important system of nerves, which control the caliber of the larger and smaller arteries of the body. The great center controlling those nerves is situated in that part of the brain's axis termed the medulla oblongata.

The prolonged exposure to a high temperature seems to paralyze this center and so produce heat exhaustion. Insolation, sunstroke, or thermal fever, on the other hand, is produced by direct exposure to the solar rays. The patient may be struck down and die in an hour with symptoms of heart failure and coma. This is frequently termed the asphyxial form and occurs more often among soldiers.

Death in some cases may occur instantaneously. In our latitudes it comes on more slowly. The patient's head commences to pain him. He feels nauseated, dizzy and oppressed. Vomiting may now occur with diarrhoea and frequent urination. His sight commences to fail or his vision is colored. His mind becomes confused and he becomes more and more insensible until coma is reached.

In this condition he is brought to the hospital. His temperature may now vary from 107 to 110 degrees and in some cases may go higher. The face is flushed, the skin pungent; the breathing stertorous and difficult. Usually the muscles are completely relaxed. Jerking, twitches and convulsions are not an infrequent accompaniment of sunstroke.

In fatal cases death usually ensues in from 24 to 36 hours.

Where the patient recovers many persistent after effects are noticed. One is often prominent—the inability to bear high temperatures. When 90 degrees is reached the patient who has previously suffered from sunstroke or heat exhaustion begins to feel uncomfortable. Loss of the power of concentration and failure of memory often occur.

Many cases of insanity, hysteria, neurasthenia, epilepsy, etc., can be traced to sunstroke.

In sunstroke the important thermolytic or heat discharging center of the brain seems paralyzed and so more heat is produced by the body than is given off. Hence the excessively high body temperature.

The old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure," has great weight in this subject and a few words of prevention may be opportune. In the first place do as little work as is compatible with your business.

Remember muscular exertion produces heat as thin as you can.

Let vegetables and ripe fruit be your chief edibles during the heated term.

Avoid strong alcoholic beverages. They are dangerous. Soft drinks are preferable. A moderate amount of beer to those who like it is best taken before going to bed.

Don't be afraid of a draft in hot weather. Get all the draft you can.

Don't eat too much nor drink too much ice-water.

TREATMENT IN CITY HOSPITAL

By DR. HERMAN L. NIETERT, Superintendent of City Hospital.

THE heat pavilion, where sunstroke cases are treated at the City Hospital, consists of a frame structure, one story high and measures about 50 feet in width and 40 feet in length, and is located among the shade trees in the courtyard in the center of the hospital. The building is equipped with eight beds, three bathtubs, an iron chest, a small medicine chest, and a long rubber hose, connected with hydrant, with which the building can be sprinkled. Two attendants and one physician are constantly in charge.

When a case of insolation is brought here it is immediately taken to the heat pavilion, where a thorough examination is made. So many diseases simulate insolation that they are often mistaken for it and it requires the utmost care, as the method of treatment might mean a great deal for the welfare of the patient.

The treatment of a case of insolation is regulated a great deal by the patient's temperature. If the thermometer registers 102 or 103 the patient is immediately given a cold bath at the temperature of ordinary hydrant water. His temperature is taken every 15 minutes and if heat is not reduced in a short time small pieces of ice are added to the water until his temperature is reduced to 100, when he is removed to one of the cots. Should the temperature be 110 or 112 the condition becomes very dangerous, as no patient can endure such a degree of heat for more than several hours without almost irreparable damage or even death. In such a case efforts are directed to reduce the bodily temperature as rapidly as possible. The patient is placed in a hydrant water and temperature rapidly reduced with large amount of ice until bodily temperature is reduced to 101, when the patient is removed to a cot. The temperature is kept down by the application of icebags and the patient stimulated with whiskey, strychnine, etc. Patients who enter with a temperature below normal are in a state of heat collapse and require different treatment, such as the application of warm baths and stimulants.

Convalescent patients are kept in the heat pavilion from 24 to 36 hours and closely watched as to their temperature. The atmosphere about them may be kept cool by a constant flow of water over the floor of the pavilion.

The 20 hospital physicians serve in turn, six-hour watches, so that someone is on duty day and night. Senior physicians direct treatment and also any special examinations. It has been found that patients not addicted to drink are the most amenable to treatment.

SECRETS OF THE BATTLE OF SANTIAGO

Demands Investigation of Santiago Sea Battle.

GOADED BY SAMPSON'S WORDS

THE FAMOUS CONTROVERSY MAY BE JUDICIALLY SETTLED.

Naval Court Will Be Convened, Admiral Dewey May Be Its Chief Officer and All the Facts Brought to Light.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Secretary Long today received a letter from Admiral Schley, asking for a court of inquiry. He immediately went into council with Admiral Crowninshield, Capt. Cowles and Judge Advocate General Lemay. Afterwards he conferred with Admiral Dewey. Later Secretary Long replied to the letter, saying that "under the circumstances" he heartily approves of Admiral Schley's course and that the department will act favorably upon Admiral Schley's request. It is stated that Admiral Dewey undoubtedly will be the head of the court of inquiry. The other members of the court have not yet been decided upon. It is not the intention of Secretary Long to have the court convened at once, but to wait until the weather becomes cooler. Admiral Schley's letter is as follows:

GREAT NECK, Long Island, N. Y., July 22, 1901. Sir:—Within the past few days a series of press comments have been sent to me from various parts of the country, of which I have seen reviews. It appears that this edition is a third volume of the said history, extended to include the late war with Spain, which the two first volumes did not contain. I have used in my text books at the naval academy.

From excerpts quoted in some reviews, in which the page and paragraph are given, I have seen a version of facts, misrepresentation of intention, such misrepresentation and defamatory remarks, which I must protest against the low flings and abusive language of this violent, partisan opponent who has infused into the pages of his book so much of the malice of unfriendly criticism. I have refrained heretofore from all comment upon the innuendoes of enemies, muttering or murmuring in secret and therefore unknown to themselves. I think the time has now come to take such action as may bring to the attention of the public the facts of the case, and to the end I ask such action at the hands of the department as it may deem proper to complete this purpose.

But I would express the request in this connection that whatever action may be, that it occur in Washington, and that all the papers and data are stored. Very respectfully, W. SCHLEY, Rear Admiral, U. S. N.

Secretary Long replied to Admiral Schley as follows: Navy Department, Washington, July 24, 1901. Sir:—I am in receipt of your letter of the 23d inst., with reference to the criticisms upon you in connection with the Spanish-American war, and I heartily approve of your action, under the circumstances, in making such action as may bring this entire matter under discussion under the clear and calm review of my brothers in arms.

The department will at once proceed in accordance with your request. Very respectfully, JOHN D. LONG.

NEW YORK, July 24.—Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley asked for a court of inquiry after he was shown an interview with Admiral Sampson, in which the latter assumed responsibility for reading the proofs of that part of MacLay's work bearing upon the Santiago campaign, criticizing Schley, of having pronounced them correct. The Admiral's face flushed as he read the interview, and few minutes he had determined on his course of action.

Making an appointment for half an hour later, the Admiral went into his daughter's house at Great Neck, Long Island, and began preparing his communication to Secretary Long. When this was done, he came out looking as though a great load had been removed from his mind. He was driven to the village academy store and postoffice.

In his right hand was a letter addressed to the Secretary of the Navy. He greeted the Post-Dispatch correspondent cheerfully at the appointed time to discuss the contents of the letter.

"I really think, as this matter is liable to take the form of a judicial investigation, I ought not to be subject to an interview just now. I think it is better to wait until I have decided to act."

More than this I ought not to be expected to say, but I would that it is very gratifying there should be any controversy over matters where the controversy is so great. "What action will you take?" the Admiral was asked.

FIGHTING THEIR BATTLE OVER.

REAR ADMIRAL SCHLEY. REAR ADMIRAL SAMPSON.

POINTS IN FAMOUS CONTROVERSY

WHY SCHLEY IS CRITICIZED.

First—Because of his temporary withdrawal from before Santiago on account of lack of coal.
Second—Because of his reconnaissance of the defenses and Spanish ships in Santiago harbor.
Third—Because of the Brooklyn's famous "loop" movement in the battle of Santiago.

WHAT MACLAY SAYS.

First—About the temporary withdrawal from Santiago: "In his report about the coal supply of the vessels under his command Schley exhibited either a timidity amounting to absolute cowardice or a perversion of facts that were intrinsically falsehoods."
Second—Having made a reconnaissance of the enemy's position and incidentally to injure or destroy the Colon, moved well up in the harbor, the presence of the enemy was determined and it was decided not to risk serious discomfiture until reinforcements arrived.

Third—The "loop" of the Brooklyn was the crucial and deciding feature of the combat and of decided advantage. Because of the course of the Spanish fleet, and the Brooklyn's sailing toward to meet it, she had blanketed the fire of the eastern vessels of the fleet on changing their courses to the westward and between them and the Spanish fleet.

HOW SCHLEY EXPLAINS.

First—His temporary withdrawal from Santiago was because of a letter from Admiral Sampson, dated May 20, 1900, in which he said: "If the Spanish ships have not yet been destroyed, the Brooklyn's mission is to destroy them. Until we receive more definite information we shall continue to hold Cienfuegos and Havana. Hold your squadron off Cienfuegos."
This significant letter was "lost" when the official correspondence was first sent to Congress. Later it was "found."

Second—Having made a reconnaissance of the enemy's position and incidentally to injure or destroy the Colon, moved well up in the harbor, the presence of the enemy was determined and it was decided not to risk serious discomfiture until reinforcements arrived.

Third—The "loop" of the Brooklyn was the crucial and deciding feature of the combat and of decided advantage. Because of the course of the Spanish fleet, and the Brooklyn's sailing toward to meet it, she had blanketed the fire of the eastern vessels of the fleet on changing their courses to the westward and between them and the Spanish fleet.

the world. Edgar Stanton MacLay, whose attack on Rear Admiral Schley in his history of the navy revived the dispute, said that his purpose in writing what he did was to induce Rear Admiral Schley to ask for an official court of inquiry.

This investigation will probably determine to whom belongs the greatest glory for the victory over Corvera's fleet.

SHAFTER, TOO, IS AGGRIEVED

Special to the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, July 24.—Friends of Gen. Shafter, like the friends of Admiral Schley, find objectionable statements in the third volume of MacLay's history of the navy. In this volume Sampson is praised at the expense of Gen. Shafter, and adverse criticisms of Shafter's conduct of the operations around Santiago are severe.

Commenting further, MacLay says that the troops had been "handled with such incomprehensible notions of generalship" that they were "ruined" by the blunders of their mission. They were "impeding the navy" to save them by a suicidal attempt to "save the army," says MacLay; then he remarks: "That the army which the troops had been so bravely and gallantly and judiciously entangled in the jungles of the island of Santiago, was rescued from annihilation by the blunders of the Spaniards rather than by the logic of the dispatches of the enemy."

Special to the Post-Dispatch. BOSTON, July 24.—With tears in his eyes and tremor in his voice, Rear Admiral Sampson replied to the latest charge that he had been guilty of a conspiracy against Schley by withholding from him the signal which had been arranged for joint action at Cienfuegos, Sampson said:

"I can communicate with the signal code to every member of the fleet. The signal arrangement was to be made known to the fleet."

FREUTHAL SAYS A FARMER'S LIFE IS THE LIFE FOR HIM

Presiding Genius of Union Station Bureau of Information Starting for Kiowa Reservation.

No more will fertile Barney Frauenthal, the anxious public diarist, Nor answer questions till he sinks into a state of coma.
For he, the child of fate, And lead a quiet rural life way down in Oklahoma.
Barney Frauenthal, the most strenuous of the strenuous, the man who answers 1,000,000 questions a day, making a total of $25,000 a year, is going to become a farmer.
Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife, his ardent wish lately learned to stray, and he will pass the residue of life upon the Reservation Kiowa.

Barney Frauenthal is the presiding genius, the father emeritus, the Poon-Hah and the omnipotent oracle of the Bureau of Information at Union Station. Since Union Station was opened in September, 1893, by close calculation he has ascertained that he has answered exactly 250,000 questions put to him by the traveling public.
Now he is going to retire to the prairies of Oklahoma, quit the strenuous life and devote himself to the cultivation of the waving wheat, the golden corn and the modest but succulent bean.

Way down in Oklahoma The pleasing, mild aroma Of fragrant wheat, the golden corn And the modest but succulent bean, Will see him driving into town with hayseed in his hair.

Wednesday night Mr. Frauenthal will start for the Kiowa reservation, which will be open for settlement by the government August 1, to establish a claim, if possible, to a "passel" of land.

"With Hayseed in His Hair." If he is successful, there he will remain, and his bright smile will be lost to St. Louis and the traveling public forever. If not he will return. His furrowed brow is based on these conditions:
A big crowd of his friends will be at the station Wednesday night to see him off and wish him good luck.

It is no idle rumor That Barney is a farmer, For he is starting out tonight to hoe another new row.
And after more—oh, never!—He answers quick and clever! Will edit the folk who stick their noses in the Bureau.

NEGRO STILL HELDS HIS OWN

Prediction of Extinction Not Supported.

MORE THAN 9,000,000 IN U. S.

FEWER FOUND IN THE BORDER-STATE REGION.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The tabulation of population, by sex, nativity and color, under the census of 1900, has now proceeded far enough to show that the negro is numerically holding his own. Those who predicted that because of his essential inferiority, he would, as a race, die out in unprotected contact with the whites of the white civilization, find no support in the returns of 1900.

The processes they look to for a natural solution of the negro problem will, to the least, be long postponed in their operation. In the border states, where the negro is in contact with the white, wherever the figures have been tabulated, to indicate that a misunderstanding of the negro race has gained a firm foothold on this continent, and one from which it is not likely to be soon dislodged. This something that previous censuses have left in dispute, the figures at hand again confirm.

The only weakness of such an estimate comes from the fact that no wholly typical American has yet been found. It is in the border states that the peculiar mixture of the negro and the white is most evident. Ten years ago the negro appeared to be leaving the border states, but now he is found in the main in the fields of the far South, and to the large cities of the North.

The negro population, actually lost in negro population between 1880 and 1900, there were only 11.5 per cent. of the population was true Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont and Wisconsin—and in each of these the negro population was less than 1 per cent. make any deductions from the figures concerning it of little meaning.

The negro population of the border states seemed to be losing his hold. The climate does not suit the negro, and he is always advised them to continue to do so. As the social ostracism which exists where the negro population is very difficult, it is this that interfered with a full negro count ten years ago.

Booker Washington has said that the negro was staying on the farms, and has always advised them to continue to do so. As a matter of fact, from the census, it appears that the negro is going to cities just as fast as the white. The negro is not leaving the farms, but is going to the cities just as fast as the white.

The negro population of the border states seemed to be losing his hold. The climate does not suit the negro, and he is always advised them to continue to do so. As the social ostracism which exists where the negro population is very difficult, it is this that interfered with a full negro count ten years ago.

On the other hand, in 1900, 46.8 per cent. of the negro population was in the border states, as against 11.5 per cent. in 1880. The negro population of the border states seemed to be losing his hold. The climate does not suit the negro, and he is always advised them to continue to do so.

ZINC FOUND IN OKLAHOMA

LUTHER, O. T., July 24.—Capt. Gamble an expert miner and prospector, who was here several days, reported having leased several thousands acres of land in the country near and west of Luther. He also reports good indications of oil on some of the land. The parties in whose interest he is working are said to be capitalists possessing ready cash to prospect and develop. It is said that the land they have leased they will soon develop it.

Young Jack Harper, premier twirler of the St. Louis staff, after pitching the Chicago team into a state of frenzy over his superb and brawny Tuesday, had his courage weakened and the game lost for him by a couple of more stupid manual errors by the Cardinals, and many that the official scorekeeper can find no means of setting down.

The score at the end stood 6 to 5 in favor of St. Louis. Superstition has it that the cause of the whole atrocious mess was Harper's failure to wear his blue sleeves, but it is more probable that that excellent pitcher would have never taken an aerial flight had the team behind him remained on earth.

It was in the sixth inning that the bomb went off. St. Louis was down and two strikes were called on the batter, with Hartnell on first and Green on first. Harper had been pitching gilt-edged ball, but three hits having been made off his delivery.

Green was playing far off first, and, as he probably didn't realize that Harper had been pitching, he was not ready for the bomb. Harper to Padden, on which Hartnell started for home.

Padden threw home as if he had several knots and kinks in his wing and Ryan, turns here. He is several miles from being Padden.

Pittsburgh is again drifting away from the second place percentage and now reaches the 50 mark, some three full games ahead of the Cardinals. St. Louis will have to win from Chicago Wednesday and Thursday to keep within hailing distance of the leaders.

having no chance to get the man at the plate, made a quick return to second to catch Green. Ryan evidently saw Wallace in a sort of trance, somewhere up in the clouds, as the ball was aimed at the clubhouse, and called out to center field, where Arthur Nichols hooked on to the ball and went up into the air.

He did a ground and lofty tumbling turn with the ball while Green sped on around the bases, winding up with another tally before Nichols could separate himself from his clumsiness.

The two runs were all that came in that inning. They were enough, with the intense heat to throw Harper off his stride, but the Cardinals lost the game that night, eventually resulting in his retirement in favor of St. Louis in the ninth, after four additional runs were made off him.

At the start it appeared that a walk-out much of the steam out of both sides, but with the Cardinals' style of play, the Cardinals started out well, getting three runs on practically one hit, a base on balls, dumb playing and an error.

The Cardinals men put up a minor league exhibition at the start. On one occasion, St. Louis baserunner walked from first to second while the Chicagoers were arguing with each other and the ball lying on the ground.

After the scoring of the three runs in the first, the Cardinals lost along, apparently laboring under the same delusion that afflicted Chicago Monday—that the game was a bluff.

Like Chicago, they found out their mistake in the eighth, when they had a double play, and the Cardinals' pitcher, who had pitched excellent ball throughout the contest, the St. Louis men got but two more hits out of the pitcher.

JOE BINGHAM HAD NOT WORKED IN 50 YEARS

WOULD NOT TIE HIS SHOES

He Saw His Own Reflection in a Mirror—Stood in Front of an Approaching Train to Save Effort.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CENTER VILLAGE, Conn., July 24.—Joseph A. Bingham of Andover was buried today. He enjoyed the unique reputation of being the latest man in Connecticut.

Bingham was fifty years old and never in the memory of any acquaintance had he done a stroke of work.

Born of well-to-do parents, he was supported by their wealth as long as they lived, then a legacy was left to him, which he used to put on a collar, and as for cooking a meal with material all given him, he would starve rather than do it.

For the first time in twenty-five years he looked into a mirror on Monday last. He saw there was his own reflection, front of an approaching train. It ended his life.

No exertion on his part was needed, as there would have been if he had used a pistol, rope or poison.

SEVERAL NARROW ESCAPES

Tin and Sheet Metal in the Factory Became Red Hot and Made Firemen's Work Difficult.

Fire destroyed the factory of Hemp & Co., tin and sheet metal manufacturers, 901 to 910 South Second street, and damaged several adjoining buildings Tuesday afternoon.

Hemp & Co.'s loss is estimated by a member of the firm at $100,000. There is an insurance of $50,000 on the building and stock. The damage to the adjacent property will not exceed $3000.

The fire was notable for the intense heat with which it was attended, making the work of the firemen exceedingly difficult and blistering and scorching persons who approached too close to the flames.

The fire was discovered about 5 o'clock, when the temperature throughout the city was about 70 degrees. The fire started in the Hemp & Co.'s building and spread to the adjacent buildings.

LEADER OF THE STEEL STRIKE

Theodore Shaffer a Quiet and Unassuming Man.

LOOKS LITTLE LIKE A CAPTAIN

SLOW TO MAKE UP HIS MIND, BUT DETERMINED.

Study of the Head of the Powerful Labor Organization Now Grappling with the Gigantic Steel Combine.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, July 24.—Theodore J. Shaffer, the leader of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers in the struggle with the United States Steel Corporation, is anything but a leader of men in appearance. Indeed, this man, on whose judgment rests the welfare of half a million toilers, has a mental and physical make-up abounding in contradictions. In looks and speech he is a typical Highland Scotchman yet he is of Pennsylvania birth. He is just past 40 years of age, but his spare figure and peculiar carriage would indicate that he is either at the three-score mark or rapidly approaching it. In conferring with his advisers he always has a look of earnestness, and his words are always the best listened to, and no stranger could pick him out as the head of the organization he rules.

From the Detroit Journal.

"Tomorrow," mused he, gazing with her deep blue eyes into the glowing grate, where the coals crumbled at the touch of the flame, divers and sundry fantastic forms seemed to gather, only to disappear again, "tomorrow, I shall be it. More over, I have been reared in the strictest of New England homes. Why should I not, then, wear a hat and a long coat, and be called a gentleman? I was an extremely indolent girl, and this we told her.

CLEVERLY SETTER MOTHER'S HEART QUARRELED THE TWO

She Agreed to a Compromise
With Its Father.

TOUCHING SCENE IN COURT
MATILDA HAD SUE FOR HIM

CHILD RAN INTO ARMS OF THE SQUARE WAS PUZZLED BY THE ESTRANGED PARENT.

Mrs. J. B. Huchle, Against Whom Habeas Corpus Proceedings Had Been Instituted, Offered to Let Her Husband See
His Boy.

The 3-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs.
Joseph B. Huchle of East St. Louis brought about a compromise Monday afternoon in the troubles between his parents.

In the East St. Louis court room the child ran into the arms of his father.
The heart of the mother was touched. She suggested a compromise to her lawyer, and this was accepted by the lawyer of her husband. By the terms of it the husband is to have the child one day a week and see it at reasonable hours on other days.

A confidence is felt by the friends of the couple that the hands of the little child will yet draw the estranged parents together in a happy reconciliation.

Mr. Huchle belongs to a prominent East St. Louis family. He was married a few years ago to Miss Nina Morris, who is also well connected.

A few weeks ago they separated and the wife went to live with her mother.

The couple had one child, a boy of 3,
who was christened Joseph B. Huchle.
The father was extremely fond of the child and made it his habit to see the boy and his wife would not permit him to.

One day last week Huchle instituted habeas corpus proceedings in the East St.
Louis court through attorney Dan Mc-Glynn for possession of the child. His wife threw up the application that his wife had threatened and was about to leave the child with the mother to prevent her husband from seeing or getting possession of the child.

Judge Sias Cook gave the wife until Tuesday to make answer. Her answer was presented to the court Tuesday afternoon by her attorney, Maurice V. Joyce.

She set forth that her husband had treated her cruelly and compelled her to leave him by threatening to harm her if she remained, and denied the fact that she intended taking the child out of the city.
Mrs. Huchle had witnesses with her to testify to the statements. Attorney Mc-Glynn, for Mr. Huchle, asked for time in which to summon witnesses to refute the statements of Mrs. Huchle and Judge Cook continued the case until Friday.

Child Ran
to Its Father.

Mrs. Huchle entered the courtroom leading her little son by the hand. Mr. Huchle was already there. When the boy saw him he cried, "Daddy," and ran into his arms.
Mr. Huchle clasped the boy in his arms and kissed him fondly and tenderly.

The mother was touched by the display of affection between the father and son, and there was a trace of moisture in her eyes as well as in those of the father.
Husband and wife exchanged no greeting, but it was plain that they had been drawn closer together by the display.

After the case had been continued the parties left the courtroom. Mrs. Huchle suggested to Attorney Joyce that she would be pleased if some arrangement could be made for her to see the boy. The mother's wish resulted in proposition being made to the father through Attorney McGlynn and the father agreed that the father should have the privilege of taking the child to his home
the mother for one whole day each week and that he should see the boy on any other day at reasonable hours.

Friends of the couple say there is no adequate cause for the separation, and are looking forward to a complete reconciliation to be brought about by the little child.

STRIKE LASTED ONLY ONE DAY.

Mill Laborers Demanded and Received
25 Cents an Hour.

A strike of mill laborers at the Mississippi Valley elevators lasted just one day. Fifteen men employed at the elevators at the foot of Clinton street went on a strike Monday. They demanded 25 cents an hour instead of 20 cents. Tuesday morning they went to work at 25 cents an hour. When the men went out they left six thousand sacks of wheat lying on one of the floors of the elevator. The men were paid 25 cents and the strike was so great that it caused the floor to give in. Sixty sacks were precipitated to the floor below. Men were immediately put to work replacing the sacks.

Sup. A. H. Norris said the men gave him no time to grant their request before striking. He said he did not object to paying them 25 cents an hour.

GERMAN FINDS A WAY TO UTI-

OIL MADE OF PINE NEEDLES

How the Vast Pine Forests of Oregon
Are Used by the Makers of This Help to Invalids.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 24.—Essential oil of pine needles is at once the product of a brandywine industry and the latest cure for insomnia. Scientists have decided that the reason that lumbermen in the pine woods sleep so well is because the dreamy balsam of the pine needles is in the air. A German living in the West, who had learned something of the oil-making method in his own country, was the pioneer in this. He invaded the immense pine forests of Oregon, where the finest pine needles in the west are to be found in profusion, and there established the first American factory for the manufacture of the essential oil of pine needles.

A very inferior kind of pine needle oil has been manufactured in Germany for some years. The headquarters of this impure industry is the forest of Thuringia, where the manufacture of the oil languishes
under the most disheartening conditions.

The German government has now declared that the pine needles of the forests of Thuringia are to be reserved for the manufacture of the essential oil of pine needles.

The essential oil of pine needles is found in the sap and in the needles of the pine tree. It is a very valuable product, and

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 24.—There is one man in New York who has found it a difficult matter to bring a trunkful of gold into the country. He is Angel Fernandez, of Venezuela, who came to America on the Philadelphia ship La Guayra on May 27.

When the Custom-House officials opened
his trunk to inspect it they were surprised to find there three bags of Spanish
money. The bags were full of gold coins.
He explained his clothing and found he had $10,000 in a belt. Sawed into his pocket
was $500, making in all $40,000.

The suspicions of the inspectors were
aroused, but a friend met him on the pier

Philadelphia ship La Guayra on May 27.

When the Custom-House officials opened
his trunk to inspect it they were surprised
to find there three bags of Spanish
money. The bags were full of gold coins.
He explained his clothing and found he had $10,000 in a belt. Sawed into his pocket
was $500, making in all $40,000.

The suspicions of the inspectors were
aroused, but a friend met him on the pier and vouched for him. This friend was a detective of Gen. Jose Manuel Hernandez, the revolutionary Venezuelan now in jail in New York.

At the same time the Venezuela consul
in New York, Gen. E. Gonzalez Esteves, received word to watch for a man who had

MOSS STAY IN MEXICO

ANTONIO MAESTRE'S BODY HAS BEEN BURIED THERE.

FIVE YEARS MUST ELAPSE

Then the Remains May Be Exhumed and Brought to St. Louis for Interment.

The body of Antonio Maestre, who probably was the best-known St. Louisian in all Mexico, can not be brought home for burial for five years.

Mr. Maestre died at San Luis Potosi, July 18, but the news of his death did not reach his wife until Tuesday. The same letter that told of her husband's death gave information of the inexpressible Mexican law that denies burial in the United States or any country foreign to Mexico until the expiration of five years to the alien who dies there.

Mr. Maestre must bow to this decree, though her husband was a friend of President Diaz and an unopened letter from the autocrat of Mexico, bearing his bold initials in lieu of stamps, lies on the table at the family home, 409 Olive street.

Mrs. Maestre was planning to go to Mexico next week with her two children to visit her husband. She had encouraging letters from him and believed that he was improving at the time of his death.

Antonio Maestre lived in Mexico 22 years ago, with a borrowed shirt upon his blistered back and the history of the narrowest escape from death a man may have and live.

For one day he and a companion, sole survivors of a shipload of sailors and passengers, had floated in a small boat in the burning Caribbean sea.

They were without food, their water jug had leaked, and they had been two days before the pitiless sun was cooking the pores of their bodies that were unprotected by the few clothes that they had brought with them. The storm-tossed vessel that had brought them without sails and lacking oars and with only the memory of the maddening death struggles of their drowning comrades to induce them to cling to life, they perished and were rescued.

His Quick Advance
in the World.

The crew of the tramp steamer, that saved the dying men, clothed them and landed them in Vera Cruz. A decade later Maestre was the confidant of the president of Mexico and his name was known all over the republic.

The love of adventure and the ability to transcribe shrewdly brought fame to Maestre.
The pliability of the man's nature that enabled him to be gracious to a peon and trunk to the great men of Mexico, insured his success.

Maestre touched the American continent at a Mexican port, but he made St. Louis his home. He came from Vera Cruz to St. Louis, and he lived here for many years and participated in the stormy scenes that preceded the dissolution of the club.

Born at Amapala, a Spanish colony, Maestre preached in a Jesuit college, Maestre taught at Washington University.

Teaching did not blind him to the possibilities of the future. He was a man who could speak Spanish, in the Mexican republic.

Soon he resigned his professorship and began to buy horses and take them to Mexico for sale. He was a successful horse trader and began trading in other products and gained the confidence of the best Mexican merchants.
